

Meet Fu Man Chu & Sheeva

Looking for adoption or foster home

KOOL KAT RESCUE is assisting Alaska Veterinary Clinic in rehoming these two senior cats. If you are looking for two wonderful cats that have lived together for a long time, won't you consider Fu Man Chu and Sheeva?

Because of the serious nature of the previous owner's health problems, she was no longer able to care for her beloved companions. Her dying wish was to see them go into a home together where they can spend the rest of their days with someone who will love them as much as she did. Both cats are very sweet and would do well in a home with older adults. Both cats have been around small dogs.

Fu Man Chu is an extremely handsome short haired seal point Siamese, 12 years of age. Fu Man Chu has taken being moved out of his home pretty hard and is having a little difficulty adjusting. He likes quiet and a vet clinic can get pretty noisy sometimes. He does respond to being loved on and will even give you a little butt action when you scratch his back down to the tail. He's a little on the chunky side, but that just means there is more of him to love.

Sheeva, on the other hand, takes relocating in stride. She seems to be comfortable just about anywhere she parks herself. Sheba is a gorgeous short haired Dilute Calico female, 8 years of age. Her patchwork markings accentuate her beautiful blue eyes.

Both cats are spayed/neutered, UTD on vaccines, and Fu Man Chu recently had a dental. If you have room in your heart for both kitties and are interested in adopting them, you can make arrangements to meet them at the veterinary clinic by calling 277-3224.

Can't adopt right now but interested in fostering both cats until a permanent home can be found? We can talk about that too, that certainly is an option. Call me and let's work some magic.....Cindy, 350-4762 or cindy@koolkatrescues.org.

Just because we're senior doesn't mean our life is almost over.
